PARIS, Sept. 12.—Relentless attacks by French aircraft, artillery, infantry and tank corps against the outposts of Germany's Siegfried line have at last compelled the Reich to shift the tide of its manpower from Poland to the west, it was learned on reliable authority this afternoon.

Heavy movements of German troops transport to the western front were reported from Bratislava, information in high sources declared.

Predict Fall Of Saarbrücken
The Paris press predicted the early fall of Saarbrücken, important industrial city at the base of the Siegfried line already evacuated by its civilians, but the French high command chose to cloak last night's hostilities in utmost secrecy. Official communiqué No. 17 declared:

"The night was calm along the whole front."

Meanwhile, Paris thrilled to re-

PA NEW OBSERVES

County Health Officer Thomas C. West is now checking up on the different schools of the county to see that proper sanitary conditions exist. So far no serious conditions have been found, although some recommendations have been made in connection with conditions at one-room schoolhouses. Mr. West says that he finds some of these with no water on the grounds. The pupils still carry water from some wells or springs at farmhouses. There were only four cases of contagious diseases, two of mumps and two of chickenpox, in the county at the time schools were opened.

During the summer months baseball games on city streets have annoyed motorists and endangered the lives of children, and now it is football. Of the two, it is probably that football is the more dangerous, since the players are usually more energetic than in baseball. Public streets were never designed for playgrounds, and while we are sympathetic with children who desire a place to play, we feel that for their own protection it would be much better to find some vacant lot, or go to the nearest playgrounds to their homes. Players are often found on the street within a block or two of a public playground.

As usual, The News will provide election returns tonight, at The News building on North Mercer street. Bulletins of results will be thrown on the screen opposite the building, as fast as available.

The polls do not close until 8 o'clock, and it will probably be at least an hour later before any appreciable reports will have been received.

Apathy Is Seen In Most Vot-

What kind of a vote is being turned out today in Lawrence county primary battles depends upon where you take a look. In the South Side districts the vote is heavy, on the North Hill it is fair and on the East Side it is light. In the country the vote up to noon was light, but the rain which started falling plus the wet and dry issue in seven rural districts, it is thought will take the farmers out of the fields and turn their attention to the polls.

An average of the North Hill precincts at noon seemed to be about 100 votes to the precinct. On the East Side it seemed to average less than that and in the South Side and the Seventh ward the average seemed to be about 135.

Little Interest
The apathy of the entire campaign was reflected in the atmosphere around the polls. Workers were there with cards and suggestions, but they seemed to be merely going through the motions. As to predictions of victory all candidates and their friends said they thought they were in good shape but the statements for the most part were "tongue-in-the-cheek" statements.

Not even ward fights were bringing out the vote for in most cases candidates for ward jobs were unopposed and the tickets for election board officials for the most part were blank.

Several candidates for county-wide offices have no opposition. On

Submarine Toll Boosted

(International News Service)
Submarine warfare on the high seas sent the British merchant shipping losses in the current war soaring towards the 100,000 ton mark today as the sinking of three more freighters boosted the total of English ships lost to 15 with a gross tonnage of more than 85,000.

The newest British victims of undersea raiders were the Firby, sunk near the Hebrides Islands where the Athena met its doom; the Blairlogie, torpedoed off the coast of Ireland; and the Cartovan, destroyed near the Azores.

Another neutral vessel, the Mark, a Netherlands freighter, was destroyed by a mine in the North Sea. There were reports that a German destroyer, believed to be the Oersted, was blown up in the Baltic. Whether the German vessel struck a mine or was destroyed by the accidental explosion of mines with which she was loaded was not made clear in the terse report of a Swedish boat in the vicinity.

(International News Service)
PITTSBURGH, Sept. 12.—More than 2,000 furloughed employees of the Pennsylvania and the Baltimore and Ohio railroads were called back to work today in the Pittsburgh district.

The employment gain was attributed to the heavy demand for steel, coal and ore shipments. Both railroads will inaugurate extensive programs of repairs to locomotives and freight cars.

The announcement said that shops at Youngwood, Derry, Erie, Olean, Conway and Mahoningtown would benefit. Pennsylvania's Pittsburgh district employment has jumped 700 with another 900 men being recalled at other central region points.

Baltimore and Ohio additions totaled 800 furloughed workers in the equipment maintenance department.

Pennsylvania railroad officials in New Castle, declared today, that more than 250 furloughed workmen of the company's Seventh ward car repair shop will go back to their jobs as a result of the Pittsburgh announcement. Most of the men are from the New Castle district proper and the rest are from neighboring localities.

Superintendent Norman M. Lawrence said the men are being summoned this week. Some have already been called back.

IN SERVICE HERE
SEVERAL YEARS

Charles B. Fiester, chief clerk to Superintendent Norman M. Lawrence of the Erie & Ashtabula division of the Pennsylvania Railroad since 1932, died this morning at 7 o'clock at his home at 219 East Sheridan avenue.

Mr. Fiester became well known and gained an unusually large number of friends during his seven years' residence in New Castle. News of his death came as a shock to many. For two years he had been in ill health, but he had continued working, except for short periods at times, up until three weeks ago.

Came From Cleveland
On July 25, 1932, Mr. Fiester came here from Cleveland to become the chief clerk to the superintendent of the division. He assumed the position when H. T. Frushour, now superintendent of the Long Island railroad at New York, was superintendent.

Before coming to New Castle from Cleveland he had served the Pennsylvania in various capacities since entering that road's service at Altoona on April 30, 1906, over 33 years ago.

At Cleveland he had served as chief clerk to the general superintendent and before that, in Buffalo, he had served as a division accountant.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—Congressional battle lines formed over repeal on the neutrality act today as President Roosevelt kept his own counsel on the date a special session would be called.

Senator William E. Borah (R) Idaho, outstanding isolationist during world war days, was back in Washington to spearhead opposition to the president's approaching demand that congress void the arms embargo.

Believe Major Offensive On Western Front Near

(International News Service)

With Warsaw holding fast against the pounding of three German armies, with French gains consolidated east of the Saar River, and with crack British troops making their presence felt on the western front, Europe's war today neared a new phase.

French troops, smashing through the rolling palatinates in what the official communiqué called a "serious" or "extremely" important advance, now are understood to have reached the actual casemates of the German westwall.

The sole German counter-offensive, immediately below Luxembourg, was halted dead, according to French accounts, which were ignored in Germany.

For the first nine days of the war French movements were conducted as probes. But now the actual German lines have been reached and German reinforcements have been brought into position.

PARIS, Sept. 12.—What many observers believe may be major French and British movements were concealed today in the sparse and negative words of French official communiqué No. 17:

"The night was calm along the whole front," said the briefest bulletin yet issued in the ten days' war.

The calmness and brevity of the communiqué may have significance in themselves, for the French general staff has proved most reticent about giving out any war news, not wishing to announce any material advances until the French positions have been consolidated.

That the front is not static was shown in last night's communiqué, No. 16, which said:

Make Progress
"Despite the enemy's resistance, our attacks continue making important progress along a front about 20 kilometers (12 miles) east up the Saar river."

Latest unofficial reports said the French army were pursuing the retreating enemy up the fields, valleys, and forests between the towns of Bitche and Sarreguemines, in the direction of Zweibrücken.

In spite of German reinforcements, and the Reich's counter-attack towards Sierck at the corner of the Duchy of Luxembourg, it was stated that the French continued to thrust forward, occupying a number of important enemy emplacements in the German Palatinates.

Throwing shells over the Saar river, French artillery continued demolishing enemy fortifications, according to French reports.

Developments In War Today

(International News Service)

Calm before what may prove the first major French-British offensive was reported today from the western front, while in the east Poland's battered forces held tightly onto beleaguered Warsaw.

War developments:

PARIS.—Early fall of Saarbrücken was predicted in the French press. War communiqué No. 17 merely said: "The night was calm along the whole front," but this was taken as confirmation that the French have "cleared up German advance posts between the line of forts, and now are about ready for a grand offensive."

With the German army west of Warsaw—German troops launched a final attack on five Polish divisions trapped north of Lodz, predicting their surrender in a day or two, clinching victory in west Poland for Germany.

BUDAPEST.—Polish broadcasters insisted that German attacks on Warsaw were hurled back several miles to the west.

LONDON.—Britain announced a convoy system, aimed to end Germany's successes in submarine warfare, had been put into force. For the first time London confirmed the active presence of British troops and airmen in France.

Far-Reaching Congress Plan Is Studied

Would Meet U. S. Problems

Laws To Prevent Profiteering Are Included In Proposals Studied

HOARDING WOULD ALSO BE HALTED

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—A far-reaching legislative program for the regular session of congress—contingent upon repeal of the neutrality act arms embargo in a special session—was reported today to be under consideration by high administration officials.

The program, which is said to have been discussed in administration departmental councils as a result of the situation created by the European war, would be designed to meet problems arising both from the war and from a war boom in business.

Chief Proposals

Chief proposals studied by experts some of which have officially been described as possibilities, include:

1. Drastic war profits tax designed to prevent profiteering should the allies make huge purchases in this country at high prices.
2. Legislation to prevent hoarding of food and prohibiting profiteering in staple commodities.
3. Increased control over transportation so the administration could prevent congestion or delay in delivering supplies both for domestic and export business.
4. Strengthening government power to combat espionage or sabotage.
5. Conferring emergency powers on the president to intervene in labor disputes in essential industries, somewhat in the manner of operation of the World War labor peace machinery.

Neutrality Law Changes Urged

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—Chas. Sawyer, Democratic national committeeman for Ohio, declared today following a White House call that "the public is with President Roosevelt in his efforts to get the neutrality law repealed."

"If we don't fill war orders, Canada will," Sawyer said. "I see no reason for that when we have unemployed men walking the streets."

Sawyer said he discussed both Ohio and national politics briefly with Mr. Roosevelt but added that politics seemed to be "more or less adjoined at the moment."

BELIEVE MAJOR OFFENSIVE NEAR ON WEST FRONT

Adolf Hitler, grew impatient. Since Britain was in the war, since its war cabinet had announced plans for a three-to-ten years' struggle, the British public began saying: "Let's get on with it!"

Military authorities agree that France's tactics thus far have been wise; that the French must of necessity test the German lines line before trying with artillery, tanks, and infantry the initial grand push of the war.

Major Offensive Nears

France's authoritative press predicts a major offensive shortly; the British public calls for it, and the fact that Germany's armies apparently have been halted in Poland seems to make it expedient.

In Poland the first pitched battle of the war was being fought, with some 50,000 to 75,000 Polish troops reported by German sources to be trapped in the bottle, its neck at Warsaw, formed by armies smashing from the north and southwest.

These Polish divisions, which found their escape to the east cut off, were being hammered to pieces, according to the Germans.

Warsaw remains safe, with women wielding shovels while the men fire guns, but an important German thrust towards the city of Lwow (Lemberg) in the southwest is reported.

Poles East Of Warsaw

The main Polish force is understood to be east of Warsaw, rather than in the city itself. Unable to penetrate the streets of the capital, the infantry and mechanized divisions of the Germans are understood to be trying to surround the city with a swinging movement from the southwest. But, the Poles point out, this would form a perilous German salient on the east which might easily be severed.

Germany's submarine warfare was marked with further success as Britain's counter-measures slowly got under way.

Three more British freighters were sent to the bottom yesterday. Fifteen British, four German, one French and three neutral ships have been sunk since the beginning of what the British alleged was another campaign of unrestricted submarine warfare.

GERMAN REPORT SAYS ADVANCES MADE IN POLAND

boots and an inestimable number of prisoners already have been taken.

"On the eastern bank of the Vistula south of Warsaw, armored German troops captured a number of heavy guns, including four 22-centimeter (about nine-inch) mortars.

"Enemy attempts to break the iron ring around Kutno have been repulsed."

Air Attacks

"North of the Vistula, German troops approaching the Modlin fortress (an imposing pile built by Napoleon) defeated the enemy north-east of Warsaw. Pursuing the enemy, Germans have crossed the line between Warsaw and Bialystok, while advance guards reached the railway line between Warsaw and Siedlec.

"The air force attacked the enemy near Kutno and bombarded the rear of communications east of the Vistula. A group of dive-bombers blocked the eastern outlets of Warsaw and destroyed the Bialystok railway station.

"Naval forces captured Grossendorf on the western part of the Hel Peninsula (near Danzig)."

"The western front reports skirmishes near advance posts between Saargemünde and Hornbek. No aerial attacks upon Reich territory were reported yesterday."

At the same time the communique was issued, the supreme command announced that Posen, Thorn, Hohensalza and numerous other cities and towns in Posen province had been occupied during the last few days, bringing back into German hands virtually all the portions of Poland that lay within the boundaries of the Reich before the World War.

Pa New's straw hat is tattered and torn, its days are numbered and few; but somehow we feel reluctant to bid that good old sombrero adieu. It's shielded our dome from the sizzling hot sun, and guarded our eyes from the light; that's why we're a feelin' so sorry to bid that faithful old headgear goodnight. The season for straws passes quickly away, like the sound of a chime or a bell; and though we feel sad that the time has arrived, we'll bid our old straw hat farewell.

Pa New's has noticed in political advertisements recently that there are a lot of "unbanned" candidates in this neck-o-the-woods. It's sure remarkable how brave men get when they are away from home.

There's not much likelihood of any of our public officials here following the example of Pittsburgh's director of public supplies, who issued an order prohibiting girls in his department from powdering their noses. It takes a lot of nerve to do that. Powdering her nose seems to be a woman's sacred right, and no official order can ever wipe out the stigma of a shiny nose in her estimation. Such an order might easily start a revolution, and the gals have plenty of powder on their side.

Although Lawrence county has failed to get her share of the rain during the past week, farmers report that what little we did get did considerable good. It laid the dust on wheat fields that were ready to plant, and it limbered up the corn that has not yet been cut. The leaves had become so dry on the corn that they broke off while it was being shocked.

There will be a lot of candidates on the anxious seat as the polls close this evening, and quite a few are likely to be at the mourner's bench tomorrow. While we congratulate candidates who are successful, we always feel sympathetic toward those who have lost. However, as the old saw goes: "It is better to have tried and failed, than never to have tried at all."

Even youngsters not much more than knee high are interested in international affairs now. A North Hill lady tells Pa New that two six-year-olds were "playing war" when one hit upon a brilliant thought. "Let's sell newspapers," he said excitedly. "We'll yell, Extra, Hitler Killed Himself. Miss Soffel, a Republican, was expected to poll her largest vote in the Republican primary where she opposed Judge Marion D. Patterson of Blair county, who bears unofficial organization support. Miss Soffel holds the endorsement of Pennsylvania's Republican senator, James J. Davis.

In the Democratic primary, where Miss Soffel is also entered, Herbert F. Goodrich, dean of the University of Pennsylvania Law School, is apparently headed for the Democratic nomination for supreme court. Dean Goodrich has been endorsed by the Democratic State committee.

One Contest

Only one contest marks the superior court race in which the three Republican incumbents' organization supported, are seeking re-election, that being the Republican candidacy of former Judge Arthur C. Dale of Bellefonte. Apparently slated for victory in the G.O.P. primary are Judges William H. Keller, Lancaster; Thomas J. Baldrige, Altoona; and William E. Hirt, Erie. Hirt was appointed earlier this year to the unexpired term vacated by Gov. Arthur H. James. The other jurists are completing 10-year terms.

Judge Keller has been endorsed by the Democrats, the other two Democratic candidates for the superior court, neither of whom has opposition, being Congressman J. Harold Flannery, Wilkes-Barre, and Edward J. Thompson, Phillipsburg, former state senator.

In Philadelphia, in the one local contest which holds statewide interest, six Republican, and three Democratic candidates are battling for their respective party majority nominations, preparatory to the general election in which a Democratic-Independent Republican fusion ticket is attempting to overthrow the incumbent Republican organization.

In Pittsburgh, the chief fight is in the Republican primary where two factions are battling for patronage control. The Democratic primary there is relatively quiet.

face a vigorous debate in the senate. White House aides had noted a poll by Senator Warren R. Austin (Vermont) Assistant senate Republican leader, indicating that between 18 and 25 senators were prepared to fight the Roosevelt neutrality program to the bitter end. The administration seemed certain of a safe majority however.

Suspends Sugar Quotas

Meanwhile Mr. Roosevelt checked soaring sugar prices in a manner that indicated the White House would not countenance profiteering. An executive order suspended sugar marketing quotas temporarily which will make possible a flood of sugar from Cuba, Puerto Rico and the Philippines.

"A great number of complaints have been made within the past few days," said the president, "that the quota restrictions on sugar marketing are making it difficult and costly for housewives and industrial users to get enough sugar to supply domestic needs."

Last week Secretary of Agriculture Wallace pointed out there was a domestic sugar surplus of 800,000 tons.

See Special Session Call

Despite the prospects of sharp debate over neutrality repeal, it was regarded certain the president would call a special session for that purpose—although he said he has not yet decided upon a date.

Boah keynoted the opposition when he said:

"There is no time when fair and open and courageous discussion is more essential for the protection of public interests than when we are under the sway of emergency sentiment."

He likewise challenged the president's assertion that congress should meet and adjourn quickly.

"No one can confine congress to one subject but congress itself," he said. "There are many things to be discussed. Congress should remain in session constantly until the regular January session and should be consulted on all problems."

plains east of the Saar for a couple of miles, then through woods which end in another flat stretch falling away to the Rhine river.

As the Germans fell back to the forts of the Westwall proper, the French cautiously went forward through terrain studded with every kind of enemy trap, such as mines and machine-gun nests.

Vague communiques so far do not mention it, but it was believed that British soldiers already are in the lines or are ready to relieve the French, because in brief war the French are yet exhausted, but for the moral value of displaying French-British unity in the face of German attempts to win peace on the basis of the occupation of western Poland.

Roland D'Oreilles, French author and broadcaster, was permitted by the censors last night to reveal that British soldiers are in France and fighting "in large numbers" on the front.

The number, it was stated, will be increased greatly.

D'Oreilles said he was not able to give the actual count of British soldiers, but he said, "I can assure you they are quite numerous, and the German tank and England fights only with French soldiers" will be denied in the trenches."

In the past few days there seems to have been a shift in the complexion of several races, notably the county commissioner. In the Democratic primary a bitter fight has developed and in the Republican primary some combinations have been made which bode no good for some candidates.

The voting in the afternoon and early evening is expected to show a heavy increase. Polls are open until 8 o'clock and it suggested that housewives and others who can, get to the polls in time to permit milk, space at the polls between 5:30 and store and office employees plenty of 8 o'clock.

1939 SITUATION IS NOT SAME AS 1914

PERHAPS we are too prone to compare 1939 with 1914 and find analogies which are neither sound nor factual. At least, we should not be too hasty in assuming that the World War is repeating itself.

A recent press dispatch points out that the nations which thus far have signified their intention of remaining aloof from the European conflict greatly outnumber those which took a neutral position at the outset of the World War.

The formidable number of neutrals therefore is in a stronger position to influence and enforce respect for their rights than was the small band which during the World War complained of disregard of rights by the warring powers.

The United States, Soviet Russia and Italy—who fought with the Allies in the World War—constitute the largest bloc in the current neutrality group. Italy, which early took a neutral position in the World War, soon was fighting on the side of England and France. President Roosevelt has proclaimed the United States' neutrality formally; Italy has said she would "refrain from the initiative of military operations," and authoritative Moscow sources have asserted the Soviet Union's intention to remain neutral.

Besides Panama and the United States, other American Western Hemisphere nations which have announced neutrality include Mexico, Uruguay, Guatemala, Brazil, Argentina, Chile, the Dominican Republic and Venezuela. Others seem likely to follow suit.

So far only four nations are involved as against nine in the first week of August, 1914.

Other differences between 1914 and 1939 have been noted. This time the belligerents have made extensive effort to justify and explain their entry into war. Today the public's information is immensely greater. New ideas are current. There is a conviction that war is not good enough as a way to settle national disputes and there is a revived vision of internationalism.

As the Christian Science Monitor has pointed out: "If there were a few people before 1914 who had an idea of a league of nations to enforce peace, there are millions today who look forward to some form of federation. These ideas will have to be included in the war aims of the nations—eventually their peace aims."

The world has come a long way in the last 25 years. It can be noted in the broadcasts of fast-moving events abroad. Commentators are stating that there are vast differences in the march of today's events. Practically no excitement; quiet and assurance, soberness and determination; remarkably little hatred and fear!

1939 need not be a repetition of 1914 unless men choose to let it be so.

MUCH MONEY IS UNCLAIMED

In banks in New York state today there are 15,831 unclaimed savings deposits, accounts which have been dormant for fifteen years. No additions or withdrawals have been made in that time. Mostly the owners or their heirs are lost, although the banks regularly make earnest efforts to trace them.

The total sum involved is $1,712,217. That is a small fraction of the state's total of more than five billions, yet a tidy sum to be overlooked in these days.

Most of the accounts are small, but one of more than $8,000 suggests that carelessness about money is not limited to the people with only a few dollars in the bank.

Banks in other states have their share of unclaimed deposits. In fact, the United States treasury has a batch of them in the form of bonds—many of them Liberty bonds—on which interest is no longer paid and which were called for redemption some time ago.

If people who start bank accounts and buy bonds can be so forgetful, what vast amounts of loose money must be lost regularly by the less cautious who hide cash around the house or mislay it in clothing.

RECAPTURING THE DUST BOWL

In one of the dustiest sections of the dust bowl, the Oklahoma-Texas Panhandle, conservationists now point to a pleasant and spreading greenness. A farming region which seemed to be blowing away permanently has been recaptured.

This is the result of concerted action by national and state authorities, with the expert help of agricultural schools and farm experimental stations. New methods were tried and have worked. Farmers, about to abandon their acres a few years ago, attended classes and then carried out instructions given them.

They learned and practiced "contour plowing," using furrows to hold whatever rain falls and prevent down-hill running off of water. They built terraces to retain moisture and used "strip planting" to anchor the soil. That is the use of alternate rows of normal grains and soil-gripping plants which prevent the wind from carrying away whole fields of top soil.

They also co-operated in tree planting on a large scale. There are now thousands of new trees actually growing in that region, recently so nearly treeless. The trees provide a barrier against the wind and they help to hold moisture.

All this has been accomplished within five years. Work of the same sort is going on in other sections. It may be that we have learned our conservation lesson before it is too late.

The Parent Problem

By Garry C. Myers, Ph. D.

QUITTING SCHOOL BAD

Last June a good many youths failed to graduate with their high school class or to win promotion. Far too many of them are not going back. While a very few of these will find employment, most will not, and those who will be employed will probably take the places of older or more deserving persons.

Of course, it is not at all easy for the youth who has failed to muster up courage to go back this fall to finish the job. Already stung with defeat, he might feel his inferiority more keenly if he went back. At least, he thinks so. But if he only used his reason, he would see that schoolmates and neighbors alike would esteem him far more highly if he returned to school and plodded on with grim determination to finish the job than if he ran away and accepted defeat, with no more "fight" in him. In a few years he will also think much more highly of himself, if he proves now that he's not a quitter.

Much Harder in Later Years

I wish I might sit down in a quiet place to reason with the boy who has about made up his mind not to return to high school this fall, when he knows he should; or with the girl in a like situation. I should try to get the boy to see that relatively few at school would know he is a "repeater," and that these soon would forget about it; that he may have this opportunity just this time; that even if he wished to return to school a few years later, it would be much harder than now.

I should try to help him see that an employer would be far more likely to give him a job if he finished school, and would be impressed with his perseverance if he kept on going to school in the face of great discouragements; that, moreover, he would be better prepared in later life to face big difficulties and overcome them, because of facing and overcoming this difficulty courageously; that he can't afford to run away just because the battle is severe.

Right now this youth is proving to himself and to the world the kind of character stuff he is made of. Yet, his parents may not be able to convince him that he should return to school this fall. Nevertheless, they might induce some other adult or youth to prevail upon him.

We wish that more schools were adapted to the youth who has failed, especially if book learning has been hard for him; also that more teachers understood such a youth, so they might help him at school to turn to what he can succeed in doing. If there were more of such understanding and guidance, there would be fewer failures.

Many of those who failed have been poor readers. It is not too late to help them to read better, if they can be induced to read at home from material far easier than that of high school level, and to read to very young children for their enjoyment. Whether the youth who failed last spring goes back to school or not, it should add vastly to his happiness and success in life to be able to read fairly well.

If your high school has already started its fall term, it should not be too late for you to go back and resume your studies. Go and see your principal for advice.

Solving Parent Problems

Q. Suppose you had a boy of fourteen who in a fit of rage threw books he had in his hands across the floor. Would you command him then and there to pick up those books?

A. Not if I had the brains I was born with.

Q. Why does it happen that some girls of the freshman class of the high school have dates with senior boys, and some of the senior girls date up with college students?

A. Page Grandma Nature. A girl between 13 and 18 is from one to three years older biologically than a boy who has lived just as long as she has.

THE VALUE OF A SMILE

It costs nothing, but creates much. It enriches those who receive without impoverishing those who give. It happens in a flash and the memory of it sometimes lasts forever. None are so rich they can get along without it, and none so poor but are richer for its benefit. It creates happiness in the home, fosters good will in business and is the countersign of friends. It is rest to the weary, daylight to the discouraged, sunshine to the sad and Nature's best antidote for trouble. Yet it cannot be bought, begged, borrowed or stolen, for it is something that is no earthly good to anyone till it is given away. And if at some time you meet someone who fails to give you a smile, may we ask you to give him one of your own. For nobody needs a smile so much as those who have none left to give.

And she realizes that if it is thus retold to the neighborhood maids as originating within her own home, she will become involved and will soon lose her popularity. I thoroughly agree with this wise woman. Scandal-mongers should do their transmitting only when out of hearing of the domestic staff, if at all.

Readers' Questions Answered
Lear Miss Markel: How should coffee be served at a dinner party?—Hostess.

Answer: The hostess at a formal dinner generally has the women guests go to the living room for coffee, while the men remain at the table for their coffee and cigars.

At an informal dinner, she usually serves coffee at the table during or after the dessert course. If she prefers, she may have both the men and women go to the living room together for their coffee.

The hostess may pour it herself or have it brought in from the pantry on a serving tray on which there should be loaf sugar with tongs and cream for those who desire it.

Demi tasse cups should be used for this purpose.

What's What At A Glance

Roosevelt's Problem Is Simplified
Sentiment Is With Him In Emergency
Stewart Describes Situation In Story

By CHARLES P. STEWART

Central Press Columnist

WITH THE war actually on, President Roosevelt's problem in a certain sense is somewhat simplified. There's a wide spread national sentiment in favor of getting behind him regardless of inter-party politics and of intra-Democratic differences of opinion. Press comment reflects it. It's reflected also in the expressions of public men throughout the country. All M. Landon already is on record, as an outstanding Republican spokesman, in support of countrywide unity. Anti-New Deal Democrats likewise have hushed up noticeably.

If the war of nothing but nerves had strung along indefinitely White House difficulties undoubtedly would have continued to multiply, but a war of shot and shell is a different proposition.

Doctors can disagree as to the proper treatment of a merely nervous complaint, but when the patient breaks out into a violently dangerous and contagious disorder they haven't much choice but to concentrate jointly on the job of quarantining against him, as the president put it in that celebrated quarantine address of his quite a while ago.

The howl then was that the mere suggestion of a quarantine might precipitate an epidemic. Now, however, here's the epidemic. Critics may say the quarantine talk helped to bring it on. That's immaterial. At this stage of the game, a quarantine's essential anyway.

Allegorical Situation

Try another allegory.

Suppose a building owner has a fire trap next to his premises. He says so and wants it safeguarded against. The fire trap proprietor insists that it isn't necessary. They dispute about it like everything.

Owner No. 1 has some stockholders who hold that the fire trap's a serious danger. They'd prefer to have their property's manager quit disturbing neighborly relations by his everlasting screaming.

Well, the fire trap bursts into flames ultimately.

In that event it's up to the adjoining owners to squirt water onto their structure, to keep it from catching. If they have some water left over it's permissible for them to squirt it on the blazing fire trap, but their essential consideration's to prevent the conflagration from spreading their way.

Possibly the No. 1 premises stockholders contend that their boss stockholder helped to set the fire trap afire by looking cross-eyed at it. No matter. Their interest is to keep their place from catching fire.

The Human Side Of The News

(By EDWIN C. HILL)

Copyright 1939 King Features Syndicate, Inc.

If there was a terrific explosion every time a microbe killed a man, we would be shocked into an awareness of a world war that has taken more lives than any of the quarrels of our own species. Modern Miracle Men, in his book, "Modern Miracle Men," published this week by Dodd, Mead and Company, compiles not only a fascinating "white book" of this continuing engagement, but flashes the latest bulletins from the front.

Here is a lucid account of the development of sulfanilamide and the all-but-final victory over Diplococcus, long featured in the rogues gallery of medicine.

"This insignificant-looking man-killer takes more lives than scarlet fever and typhoid fever, malaria, influenza, diabetes, meningitis and automobile accidents put together," writes Mr. Ratcliff. "It kills at a faster rate than the Civil War did and destroy Americans more rapidly than the highly efficient German army was able to during the nineteen months we were in the World War."

Hence there is nothing anti-climatic in Mr. Ratcliff's book, or a report on it here. Here is a war in which there is imposed no mandate of neutrality in thought, word or deed. You may cheer, if you feel like it, and I certainly did, as a tireless, patient, resourceful scientist saves a suffering baby and hands to the regions of life a new weapon against Death.

In fact, if under the shocking impact of the day's first page you feel your emotions getting out of hand, you may read this book with what the dramatic critics call "sympathetic identification," declare yourself in and slouch out hauled and bewildered in slings vicariously the only sane war on the planet.

"Our side"—and by that we mean all men of good will—has been taking a terrific beating in the last twenty-five years. Apples of dust and Dead Sea fruit are the harvest of all our striving for peace, for a rational economy, for work, freedom, security and solvency. We have lost one decision after another.

Here, at last, is a courier holding high the gonfalon of hope, bringing news of sweeping victories for "our side."

Mr. Ratcliff, scientifically trained at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, is one of the best of the new generation of science reporters in newspapers, magazines and books. Newspaper accounts have given us the highlights of most of his chapters, but he marshals the whole story in a succinct, highly readable, objective report of each fascinating engagement. In addition to the complete story of the new advance against pneumonia, there is the medical epic of the iron lung, which Frederick B. Snite, Jr., has won for himself by his gallant occupation; engagements won against infantile paralysis, typhoid fever and a host of other untold laws of the sub-microscopic underworld, and the armies of murderous bacteria which, stepped up to man-size, would be no less than Martian monsters.

Then there is a fine, simply written, understandable and comprehensive chapter on vitamins, enabling you to get this all ship-shape in your mind, if it hasn't been quite clear in the past. There is a work—

CURIOUS LINE UP

The diplomatic world was very much surprised when it learned of the Non-aggression Pact that had been agreed to between Germany and Russia. Diplomats could not understand how Germany could have an agreement with Japan and Russia at the same time. The politicians did not have any reason to be surprised at such an agreement. Nearly all of these agreements are entered into a Pickwickian way. There are always reservations in the minds of both signers to such agreements. And then, Russia and Germany have been friends at times and enemies at times. Czar Nicholas and Kaiser Wilhelm were cousins and each of them were cousins of the English King, and during the Great War they were separated very curiously.

The Germans, however, have never had a great deal of respect for the Russians. Their rulers, at least, did not. As far back as the days of Peter the Great and Catherine of Russia there was evidence of this. There was the occasion when Peter the Great and Catherine were visiting Frederick William I at Berlin. Frederick was very much vexed at them, and during the Great War they were separated very curiously.

Chest Board Told Campaign Plans

Outline Of October Drive Given By Matheny; Fix Goal Shortly

Before Community Chest leaders plans for the 1939 campaign of the organization were outlined last night by Campaign Chairman Marshall G. Matheny.

Twenty-six board members and representatives of the nine agencies which participate in the Chest attended the meeting in the Y. W. C. A.

"After hearing the plans which Mr. Matheny has outlined," President Alec Samuels of the board said, "there is no doubt in my mind but that this year's drive will be a real success. There are many difficulties, but the plans which have been presented tonight will, I believe, overcome these difficulties."

Planned as part of the Chest publicity this year are several issues of a leaflet, "Community Chest News." A motion picture, portraying the activities of Chest agencies is also being hurried to completion for showing before clubs and other organizations.

The budget committee submitted a formal draft of the needs and allocation of funds to the Chest. Chest agencies Agency spokesmen conferred later with the committee. Public announcement of the 1939 goal will be made shortly.

The thanks of the Board were also given to the auditing committee which completed its task of auditing the books of all community chest agencies, for the purpose of determining the accounts necessary to carry on their work during the ensuing year. This committee consisted of the following: F. E. Sowersby, chairman, Frank W. Hill, S. B. Ciel, J. W. Miller, C. C. McKibben, G. Ward Whittaker, J. A. McGrath, Dudley Arnold.

BRITISH TROOPS ARRIVE IN FRANCE OFFICIALS ADMIT

In the communique, belief persisted many quarters that British units actually had begun operations on the western front in company with the French.

Speeding to frustrate German submarine warfare, which is taking a daily toll of British shipping, the British government today announced that a widespread naval convoy system has been put into force.

To protect British ships. Its operation, the ministry of information conceded however, is not yet complete since Britain's merchant fleet was scattered all over the world when the war broke out, and time is required to station warships along the major sea routes to protect every British merchantman. Details of the convoys were kept secret, since any information would be of obvious assistance to the enemy.

For the first time the ministry announced no objection would be made to mention of the presence of the royal air force in France, providing no details concerning flying units or other information likely to aid the enemy was given out. Confirmation that the R. A. F. has sent units to France quickly followed the first word released here that a British expeditionary force has joined French troops at the Rhine front.

Secrecy On Troop Movements. Their movements cloaked in the closest secrecy, several British divisions today were understood to be near the front lines in France, while some "Tommys" actually were fighting by the side of the French "Poles."

With the utmost caution—for this war is being fought with far more care and much less dash than the World conflict of 1914—British authorities finally revealed for the first time today that major British units are in the trenches along Germany's west wall.

In the first week of the war, according to the Daily Express, which attributed its information to the "highest authority," the German army has lost 50,000 killed and 170,000 wounded.

Word that British troops were active on the front overshadowed all other news in the public's mind here, and ended the period of rumors current during the last few days regarding the extent of immediate British participation on the western front.

In striking contrast to World War days, when troops left to the accompaniment of cheering, speculating, and flag-waving, the present force was transported quietly, efficiently, with a minimum of fuss and without mishap.

French-British Navies In Hunt For Submarines

(International News Service)

PARIS, Sept. 12.—Close cooperation between the French and British navies to clear the seas of German submarines was revealed today by a high French official.

"We are collaborating absolutely with the British navy," he said. "We are proud that we are able to help kill the U-boat scourge."

"Our ships are helping to protect British commerce in the English Channel and in the Atlantic."

It was stated that French war vessels have scoured the Mediterranean from Gibraltar to Syria but have reported finding no hostile submarines.

France's new 35,000-ton battleships soon will be ready to join the battle cruisers Dunkerque and Strasbourg, which are said to be capable of out-running and out-gunning the German pocket battleships Scharnhorst and Gneisenau.

Modern French submarines, many of them 500-ton craft, capable of long voyages and specially trained for submarine duels, now are reported at sea searching for German U-boats.

manlike round-up of insect pests and what they mean in the critical life-balance, and their rating in the basic equations of food, agronomy, sickness and health and our eventual "happy issue out of our afflictions."

The last few years have brought many fine books in the field of simplified science and medicine for popular reading. It may seem like quibbling, but I have thought that some of the scientists have been too much given to the jocular and colloquial, too eager to achieve light, Sunday supplement journalism, so they wouldn't scare away readers. There isn't a hint of that in Mr. Ratcliff's book and there isn't a line that is stuffy or academic. It is a fine, straightaway, factual, objective handling of a story of planetary dimensions, interesting to the last comma. I recommend it to all who, like the late William James, seek "the moral equivalent of war."

Little Interest In Philadelphia Primary Battles

About Half Of Registered Vote Is Expected To Be Polled Today

(International News Service)

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 12.—Only one-half of Philadelphia's 1,047,056 registered voters were expected to turn out today to cast ballots in primary elections overshadowed by war clouds and made listless by lack of party fights.

Clear-cut victories for slated Democratic and Republican candidates seemed certain in voting for mayor, city council, row offices, four municipal judges and 10 magistrat posts. Fiery campaign drives and speeches were conspicuous by their absence in the past month.

Former Judge Robert E. Lamberth, who has demanded the city budget be balanced, had the inside track for the 23rd C. P. mayoralty nomination, while City Controller Robert C. White, who did no campaigning, was rated a sure winner on the Democratic slate.

Of five Republican candidates opposing Lamberth, only former Mayor J. Hampton Moore, seeking a third term, and Charles H. Grakeloff offered appreciable competition.

REPORT GERMANS FORCED TO SHIFT TROOPS TO WEST

ports from Poland that six or seven "lost" Polish divisions trapped in the so-called "Poznan pocket" are now threatening the rear lines of German troops which have pushed beyond Lodz to the south of them.

Offsetting this was an unconfirmed report that a German motorized unit had crossed the Bug River in the vicinity of Malkinia, breaking into the triangle formed by Polish troops as their stand for the defense of Warsaw.

Evacuate Lille
Meanwhile, the population of the industrial French city of Lille dispersed to the countryside. Lille lies in northwest France on the Belgian border. Reason for the evacuation was not made known.

The calmness and brevity of the communique tended to confirm belief that the French, possibly actively aided now by British troops, have been busy cleaning up all advance posts in the No Man's Land between the Maginot and Siegfried lines and are now almost ready for a real offensive against the Siegfried line or west wall itself.

The French are consolidating their positions, moving up endless lines of reserve forces in preparation for the historic moment when the allied high command gives the signal for the opening of real hostilities.

Brilliant Advances
French advances between the Saar and Blisse rivers north of Saar-Regimines on the Franco-German border were characterized as particularly brilliant, bringing the French within striking distance of Saarbrücken, equally vital to the Germans as an industrial center and a petroleum supply center.

"Perhaps the moment is not far away," said Charles Morice, writing in the Petit Parisien, "when the Germans will have to move their line above Saarbrücken."

Well-informed sources, justifying the cautious nature of the Franco-British campaign against the impatient demands of those insisting upon a major offensive without delay, said that the operations carried forward thus far are in line with the reputation of the French general staff, conceded in military circles to be the world's best.

Casualties At Minimum
Although hospital trains are arriving in Paris daily from the front, and wives and mothers are being notified steadily that their husbands and sons have died in combat, the casualties thus far, it was said, have been held to a "minimum," considering the nature of the task.

General Marie Gustav Gamelin, chief of staff, has uppermost in his mind the conservation of life. In this precept he is following the example of his World War predecessor, Marshal Henri Pétain.

Prevention of losses is one of the chief and unending preoccupations of the general staff, not only because of natural humanitarian instincts, but for the very hard and practical reason that the French are facing a foe twice as strong numerically as they are.

British Liner Escapes Subs On Trip To U. S.

Declared—Made Trip Via Zig Zag Route

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—A plucky British sea captain who zig-zagged his liner safely past nine German submarines, one reportedly "off Nantucket," on an Atlantic crossing, docked his ship with its cargo of 441 passengers and $17,500,000 in gold, at New York today with the brief comment that "it was a nice trip."

Capt. Edgar Wallace Moulton, commanding the liner Arandora, was under orders and reluctant to talk but pins on a chart in his cabin, and other officers of the Arandora, told the story.

The pins marked the locations where submarines had been sighted and sub officers revealed that passengers "hadn't realized how close" the liner had come to submarines.

The Arandora left Southampton 48 hours before Britain declared war and after that her course was purposely erratic and far south of regular shipping lanes.

As the Arandora carefully picked her way along, her crew slipped gray paint on her funnels, superstructure and as much of the hull as they could reach.

Passengers on the Arandora included Robert Montgomery, Jr., 7, and Enid Montgomery, 5, children of the film star Robert Montgomery; and Mrs. Alan D. Wood, social registerite of Philadelphia.

American Business Is Given Warning On Bolivia Sales

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—American business was officially warned today by the Department of Commerce to ship goods into Bolivia only on a cash-and-in-advance basis.

The action was taken on advice from the United States embassy at La Paz the Bolivian capital that the South American country had suspended all foreign exchange transactions in the face of European developments.

The Department of Commerce also announced that there probably would be considerable difficulty in importing tin from Bolivia for the present, at least.

There was no official indication as to when Bolivia would lift its drastic restrictions on foreign exchange operations.

Tells War Views To Rotary Club

Dr. Pollock Fears 'Frightful
Force' If Nazis Win
Russians

A "frightful force" would be created in the world if the great Russian Bear gets completely into the hands of the German technicians, Dr. James K. Pollock, University of Michigan professor and native of New Castle, told Rotarians here at a luncheon in The Castleton yesterday.

The disturbance now, Dr. Pollock said, can properly be called a "Central European war" but it has strong possibilities of spreading into a world-wide conflict involving every section of the globe.

Condemns Sub Warfare

The speaker bitterly denounced the German chancellor's submarine warfare and said that "Hitler is taking up just where Germany left off in the last war—by sinking ships."

Urging quick repeal of the embargo provisions of the present neutrality act, which, he believes, throws our help to the German side, Dr. Pollock declared that America had "better get into the service of supply or find itself in the front line trenches."

"And we'd all rather be in the service of supply than in the trenches," Dr. Pollock added.

Touching upon Russia and Italy, the Michigan professor, who hurried back to Ann Arbor, Mich., at the close of Monday's luncheon, indicated that the Soviets are only in the war under its non-aggression pact with Germany "to get all she can out of it" and said Italy remains a somewhat of a question mark.

"It was significant that Mussolini said his country would remain neutral for the present," Dr. Pollock said.

Dr. Pollock was introduced yesterday by Carl E. Paisley, secretary of Rotary. Guests included State Senator William J. Eroe, Jr., several wives of Rotary members and others.

For several days Dr. and Mrs. Pollock and their two children, Ann and Robert, have been visiting with relatives here.

(International News Service)
HARRISBURG, Sept. 12.—Pennsylvania's tanning industry, employing 10,000 persons earning $10,000,000 annually, has jumped the state to the forefront of the nation's leather-tanning states, according to Secretary of Commerce Richard P. Brown.

After running second to Massachusetts for a number of years, Brown said that Pennsylvania has "finally passed the Bay state" and now leads by more than 10 per cent.

Approximately a fifth of all the leather being tanned in the United States today is coming from Pennsylvania tanneries, he added. Product value of the state's tanning industry in 1937 was $70,000,000, an increase of 12 per cent over 1936.

NEW YORK.—Because of the international situation foreign museums which have loaned paintings to the Masterpieces of Art exhibition at the World's Fair have asked exhibit directors to keep the paintings until further instructions are sent.

Cabled requests to that effect have been received from directors of the Louvre, the National Gallery of London and the Rijksmuseum of Amsterdam.

Pictures in the art exhibit from these three museums represent $2,500,000 worth of art.

Perry T. Rathbone, director of the exhibit, has informed other leaders that no shipments will be made either now or at the close of the Fair, without specific directions.

"We have no objections to retaining custody of the foreign pictures as long as the owners may wish," he said.

Dr. Dafoe's Column On The Quintuplets And The Care Of Your Children

Copyright 1938, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

DOCTOR OUTLINES SPECIAL PROCEDURES IN HANDLING PREMATURE INFANTS

Yesterday we explained that a premature child needs different treatment from a full-time infant. For instance, it is often necessary to wait a few days before giving the child a bath, although in some cases we do give a bath in warm water to stimulate a baby who isn't breathing strongly enough. When a bath cannot be given without running the risk of chilling it must not be given under any circumstances. Sometimes a partial bath will solve the problem. That is, the face, genitals, buttocks may be washed without removing the baby from his incubator and exposing him to chill. The quintuplets didn't have a bath in water for months after they were born. They were bathed in warm oil.

Remember that a premature baby has practically no resistance to infection—that is one of the more dangerous aspects of prematurity. Apparently it is during the last couple of months within the mother that the baby absorbs the resistance to disease normal children are born with. Thus premature children have a great tendency to take colds; when they do, they have so little resistance that a fatal pneumonia is likely to develop. So you see the precautions that are necessary with a premature child.

It means that no one can be allowed to go near him or breathe into his incubator except the person who is caring for him. And this person, whether it be the mother or the nurse, should carefully wash her hands and put on a mask before handling him. Anyone with a cold should not be allowed near a baby, premature or normal! The feeding of a premature child presents a real problem too. It is especially important that such a child have mother's milk; unfortunately, it is rare that the mother has milk at first. So it is necessary to get this precious milk from some other nursing mother or, failing that, from some hospital. The milk is most often fed to the baby through a medicine dropper, a few drops at a time. Feeding through a stomach tube is something that only a doctor should advise, and when he does the feeding should be administered by a trained nurse.

Your premature baby is likely to develop rickets so it is important that he be given cod liver oil or viosterol just as soon as possible. Orange juice is another food that all children need; a premature child needs it more urgently and it should be given him as early as two weeks after birth.

Parents of premature children shouldn't be discouraged by the prospect of all the care necessary to rear them. When I look at the quintuplets today I find it hard to realize that they were premature children. When the five of them come charging at me in the morning as I walk into the nursery, they actually bowl me over. So just think of the quintuplets and how they have "caught up" since the days when they were in incubators, getting their food through medicine droppers.

DAILY DOZEN

(From the Medical Society of the State of Pennsylvania)

When health fails, the nails are quick to show change. Color, thickness and rate of growth show alteration.

A general condition may affect all nails of fingers and toes. A few nails may be affected by local injury or infection.

Such changes in nails often aid the physician in diagnosis. The color is first noted, white spots may appear.

Chronic poisoning frequently alters the nail color. White transverse lines may indicate arsenical poisoning.

Chemicals sometimes cause nails to become fragile and split. Eggshell nails appear in some cases of arthritis and neuritis.

Longitudinal streaks are often found in adults past fifty. Hitting a nail with a hammer alters it, too—and hurts.

Canada Votes $100,000,000 War Chest To Aid England

To Rush Supplies To Motherland

German Consular Officials Are Handed Passports By Canada

DOMINION WILL SPEED WAR PLANS

(International News Service) OTTAWA, Sept. 12.—Armed with a $100,000,000 war chest voted by the emergency parliament, Canada set about today to lend all possible aid to England in the war with Germany.

One of the first steps was expected to be the prompt establishment of a new ministry of munitions and supply whose task will be to send a steady stream of war materials flowing to the motherland.

The present national defense department is charged with the task of speeding up the internal defense of England's North American dominion and render it as invulnerable as possible to attack from the outside.

Germans Given Passports
Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King was forced to put an end to parliamentary squabbling to bring passage of the $100,000,000 defense appropriation.

"Enemy planes may be here in a few days," he sharply warned the house, which had been engaging in extended debate.

A series of drastic rules against trading with the enemy was also announced by the prime minister. The new rules were more severe than those invoked in the last war and will bring all German property at once under control of the Canadian government.

German consular officials were given their passports and made immediate plans for quick departures.

Stopped By German Submarine And Searched—Then Allowed To Proceed

(International News Service)

MOBILE, Ala., Sept. 12.—The American steamship Wacosta, a 5,432-ton freighter operated by the Waterman Steamship company of Mobile, was proceeding today from Glasgow to New York after having been stopped and searched by a German submarine off the Irish coast.

Notification of the German U-boat's action was cabled from the Wacosta to the Waterman offices last night, and the company immediately notified United States government authorities.

It was believed here the incident was the first of its kind involving an American vessel since outbreak of the European war.

According to the steamship company, the Wacosta's papers and cargo were examined for three hours before the freighter was permitted to proceed. The ship is due in New York Sept. 20.

No date is discussed because two divorces must first take place—Miss Leigh's from her London barrister husband Leigh Holman, and Olivier's from his British stage star wife, Jill Esmond.

Italy and Russia, Hitler's "Question Mark" Allies

Russia has been "reported mobilizing." Italy has announced she will take "no military measures." Five big moves against Germany came with orders to Britain's fleet. (1) Skagerrak blocked. (2) Hamburg, Cuxhaven and Kiel Canal blocked. (3) North Sea bottled. (4 and 5) Complete net for German shipping supplies. (6) French Navy takes up blockade. (7) Transport route of French troops through Africa against Italy. (8 and 9) French naval blockade. (10) British guard Suez and plan for sending troops through (11) backdoor route into Poland. (12, 13 and 14) Poles fight invaders on three fronts. (15) The Italian passes and (16) the Brenner Pass, troop lanes if Italy should swing in with France and England, and (17 and 18) Shuttle bombing lanes from England and France over Germany to Poland. This map shows at a glance the present status and the possibilities in the war, but all depends on Russian and Italian moves.

Erie Annual Conference Will Be Invited To Meet In New Castle Next Year

Rev. William V. McLean, pastor of the First Methodist church, announced to the New Castle Ministerial Association in the First Presbyterian church Monday, that Erie annual conference of the Methodist church will be invited at its session in Jamestown, N. Y., this week, to convene in New Castle in 1940.

The ministers voted to co-operate in the effort to bring the conference to this city. Last year the local delegation intended to invite the conference here for 1939, but voluntarily withdrew the invitation in favor of Jamestown, upon learning that the Jamestown First Methodist church would be celebrating its 125th anniversary. Conference is convening there today and through the rest of the week.

Dr. Harold A. McCurdy presided over the meeting yesterday and at the conclusion turned over his presidential office to Rev. Thomas B. Shearer, who was unanimously elected. The meeting began at 10:30 with devotions led by Dr. F. S. Neigh. Dr. J. J. McIlvaine presented Rev. William Parsons, formerly of Pulaski, who is enroute to his home in Florida after traveling through the east. Dr. C. H. Heaton gave the law and order committee report. Rev. Shearer of the park committee, thanked all members who had taken services at Cascade Park this summer and all others who had co-operated. Dr. C. B. Wingerd gave the radio report, Rev. P. C. Pearson the library report and Dr. G. S. Bennett the nominating committee report. Marshall Matheny spoke concerning the Community Chest campaign and asked that there be appointed ten solicitors for each church and that on October 8 the morning services in the churches be in behalf of the Community Chest. The association agreed to do this as far as is possible.

The report of Rev. R. B. Withers, treasurer, was followed by a report by Dr. Bennett of the athletic committee, who requested ministers who have games in the league to enforce the regulations regarding eligibility of players.

Retiring President McCurdy spoke with regret of the departure of Dr. Wingerd in the near future, and Dr. Wingerd replied in his usual gracious manner. The Central Presbyterian minister recently announced his acceptance of a pastorate in Florida.

Plans are being made by the clergy and the Ministers' Wives club to have a farewell reception later this month in honor of Dr. and Mrs. Wingerd. Arrangements are in charge of Rev. and Mrs. Shearer, who are the presidents of the two organizations.

The association also expressed regret at the departure from the city of Dr. George Knippel, retired Emanuel Evangelical pastor, and voted to send letters of commendation to both he and Dr. Wingerd when they reach their new fields of work and residence. Dr. Knippel is leaving this evening for Eliston, O.

Invitation to the New Year holiday services this week in Temple Israel was presented by Rabbi Norman Diamond. The closing prayer was given by Retiring President McCurdy. The association will meet every two weeks—next time on September 25, 10:30 a. m., First Presbyterian church.

Republicans Have Registration Lead Of 444,000 Votes

Lead Democrats By Enormous Majority Throughout State, Is Revealed

(International News Service) HARRISBURG, Sept. 11.—Republicans led Democrats by nearly 444,000 in registration figures for today's primary elections throughout the state.

Unofficial estimates placed the total GOP registration at 2,568,293, with that of the Democrats set at 2,124,908. The Republicans lead was 443,385.

Compared to last year's figures, the Republicans led by almost 300,000. In 1938, the GOP margin was 163,252, the figures reading: Republicans, 2,372,528; Democrats, 2,209,276.

In last year's elections, the Republicans swept back into control of the state with selection of Arthur H. James as governor. The "Little New Deal" administration of former Gov. George H. Earle was repudiated at the polls after a four-year reign—the first Democratic reign in Pennsylvania in 44 years.

Expect 100 Here Thursday; Chambers Motor Heads Home From Mackinac

More than 100 Chrysler car dealers from eight counties will set eyes on the new 1940 Chrysler — "the beautiful Chrysler" — for the first time at a noon luncheon conference at New Castle Field club Thursday, September 14.

Announcement of the showing came today from T. E. Chambers, president, and Jesse W. Gibson, sales manager, respectively, of Chambers Motor company, local Chrysler distributor, home from the 1940 distributors' showing at Mackinac Island, north of Detroit.

Close to 1,000 distributors and their wives boarded the steamer Greater Buffalo at Detroit and sailed to Mackinac for the conference in the island's famed Grand hotel. There they viewed the new cars, the first automobiles to traverse roads on the island. They were towed from ship to hotel.

Speakers included T. E. Keller, president of the Chrysler corporation, and David Wallace, president of the Chrysler Motor Car company. Major Bowes' units furnished entertainment.

News And Views From Pennsylvania Capital

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Sept. 12.—Preparations for the opening on September 25 of the trial of David L. Lawrence, chairman of the Democratic state committee, are going forward. It was revealed here by opposing attorneys, despite rumors of a possible postponement. There have been reports that the trial may be postponed until after the general election, but nothing definite on this has transpired as yet.

District Attorney Carl B. Shelley Dauphin county said he would be prepared to open the trial of the former Earle administration cabinet official as scheduled. All witnesses for the trial have already been subpoenaed, he said. Former Judge J. Dress Pannell of Harrisburg, one of Lawrence's attorneys, said he had no knowledge of a postponement and that he was continuing with his preparations for the trial opening. Lawrence is charged with elections violations.

District Attorney Shelley, with no opposition in the Republican primary, is apparently headed for victory in the general election, Dauphin county being a confirmed Republican stronghold. Shelley, who is making his first bid for election, having been appointed to his present post, will be opposed in the November election by Paul A. Kunkel, uncle of State Senator George Kunkel. Shelley's opponent is a brother of the late Judge George Kunkel, who presided over the capital graft cases of 30 years ago.

The state department of commerce is now engaged in distributing 50,000 copies of a printed booklet portraying the state's industrial advances. The booklets are being distributed to businessmen throughout the country. The booklet points out that Pennsylvania holds first rank in the nation in 39 manufacturing industries.

Although the war in Europe has driven from the minds of Pennsylvania voters most of their interest in the coming election, political circles still hope to be able to discover when the vote is counted what change if any there has been in the state's political lineup since the last election. With next year a presidential year, both sides are eager to measure their strength.

Authorities are confident that the German spy system here is broken because of the success of surprise attacks in the Saar fighting, notwithstanding sabotage.

Line May Hold Answer To High Football Team

Backfield All Set With Veterans, Line Is Biggest Problem For Bridenbaugh

BUTLER HIGH TO PLAY HERE FRIDAY

Coach Phil Bridenbaugh is looking forward these days, but it isn't because of his backfield, it's the line that is bothering the local mentor. Most New Castle is going to have a veteran backfield, but a rather untied line. The first game of the year here Friday night against Butler High will give the coaches a good idea what the material looks like under fire.

At the moment the outlook is rather good—there is only one spot that bothers the mentors and that is the right tackle post where Dick Biddle, a former Washington high husky is trying to out Dynamite Castrucci from his post. This is going to be a big task. The Mahoningtown boy is not as big as Biddle, but has a year's experience on the Edgemoor boy and may get the starting nod Friday night.

Kulnis To Back

At the left tackle John Kulnis is holding forth and this former Ben Franklin High lad is going to be a tower of strength to the line this year, having a year's experience. The guard jobs seem rather well set with Tom Gilboy at left guard and Piccirilli at the other right guard spot. Both boys saw a lot of service last year and will be valuable men to have on the line.

The center will be held down for the present at least by Ernie Adamo, the Mahoningtown boy, who alternated with Pelusak last year at the right end, the latter has not had the experience of Adamo, but so far this year has shown a determination to make the starting lineup and has worked hard. He will no doubt be at right end on Friday night.

The ends will show one veteran Ralph Cennamo at left end, and Pete Zarilla, a holdover from last year at the right end, the latter has not had the experience of Cennamo, but so far this year has shown a determination to make the starting lineup and has worked hard. He will no doubt be at right end on Friday night.

The backfield is not much of a problem this year with such seasoned vets as Lauro, Roberts, Gendler, Ciazza, Sovinski and Burris around, not to mention this lad Thomas of the West Side who for his size is no slouch either and is going to be heard from before the season is over. He is developing into a good punter as well as ball totter.

The big question mark is the line this year and if the front wall responds, it is safe to say that when the chips are counted in November in Class AA circles that New Castle

High will be among those considered. The biggest stumbling blocks in Class AA this year are in our estimation—Johnstown and Washington.

Butler Wins Opener
Butler High opened its 1939 football season last night at Butler high field under the lights by trimming the fast Zelenople team 12 to 0. The Butler backfield consisting of Sandloof, Iannotti, Smith and DeRose looked very good in the inaugural and there is hope in Butler that the Blue and Gold can upset the dope bucket this year and defeat the New Castle High "Red Hurricane."

Deplore Meeting Of Ambers And Henry Armstrong

Coming Welterweight Champion Fight Fails To Gain Much Praise From Commission

(International News Service)
WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—While sustaining Henry Armstrong as world welterweight champion, the National Boxing Association Monday deplored the coming welterweight title fight between Armstrong and Lou Ambers as contrary to "the principles of good sportsmanship and the interests of boxing."

Armstrong recently lost his lightweight crown to Ambers and to clear up a dispute over whether Ambers was both lightweight and welterweight champion, the association adopted a resolution unanimously sustaining Armstrong as welterweight king.

Deplore Meeting
In a second resolution adopted at the meeting, the NBA deplored the coming meeting between Ambers and Armstrong, claiming it was "in variance with all principles of good sportsmanship and the interests of boxing."

The resolution set up a new NBA rule "that no champion in a lower class shall be permitted to contest for a championship in any other class until he has first met all the logical contenders in his class as designated by the NBA."

It meant in effect that the NBA believed Ambers ought to clean up on the lightweight division before stepping up to a welterweight fight.

Mickie Rubin Stops Sikora

Frankie Moran Loses Thrilling Battle To McKeesport Boxer

PROVIDENT AND COMO STAGE FAST BATTLE

After being jabbed off balance by a long left hand in the opening stanza Mickie Rubin of this city collected himself in the second round and sent a left hook to the stomach that knocked out Steve Sikora, ex-member of the Panther boxing team in the Arena last night.

Sikora substituted for Johnny Hinish, A. M. A. senior champion of the A. A. U. who claimed he had injured a hand training Sunday. However, he failed to notify the Jefferson A. C. until last night. No doctor's certificate was received.

Under the circumstances there was nothing else to do than put the ex-collegian into the ring. He made things warm for Rubin the opening round but his body, frail about the midriff, failed to withstand the shock of the TNT left hook and Referee Tom Jones counted him out.

Frankie Moran, this city, and George Theus, McKeesport, 126, and both lefthanders, staged a great fight and Theus, a colored lad, deserved the decision which he received. However, it was such a thrilling fight that the loser also deserved plaudits for fighting gamely while losing.

The Joe Provident-Johnny Como, 147 pound fight was a humdinger. Each a champion in his respective district, fought hard and earnestly for three chapters with honors going to Como who had a slight edge. It was a contest that brought down a roar of cheers when finished. Como got the decision.

The Champion Smokey Robinson-Allen Reid lightweight fight did not materialize because Reid of Pittsburgh did not appear. A novice, Andy Rasky of Pittsburgh took his place, jumped around the ring considerably and was sent down with a right in the first chapter.

He took a count and while getting up Referee Tom Jones counted 10. The fans believed Rasky was off the floor. According to the referee's opinion he was not fully straightened up and might have been easy prey and perhaps hurt if hit again because Rasky was a beginner, stopped the fight.

The show was a financial success and as a result the Kiddies who are entertained by the Tigers club this Christmas will receive some nice gifts. It was one of the best crowds of recent shows and the battles kept the fans in good humor.

Other results:
Boltton Ford, Pittsburgh, defeated Phil Porto, Midland by technical knockout in second round; 140 pound class.

Russ Phillips, Oil City, defeated James Worthy, McKeesport; three rounds; 145 pound class.

Billy Reale, New Castle, won from Buddy Burke, Pittsburgh; three rounds; 155 pound class.

Sully Tonti, Midland, defeated Tampa Kid, McKeesport; three rounds; 155 pound class.

Smokey Robinson, National A. A. U. champion, Oil City, knocked out Andy Rasky, Pittsburgh; first round.

Sports World Ramblings

Local briefs—Four of New Castle's 1939 gridiron foes bit the dust as King Football made its debut. Washington, annually one of the toughest opponents, was shaded by Carnegie, 2-0; Ambridge mowed down Erie Tech, 13-0; Grove City was on the short end of 27-0 count in its clash with Erie Strong, and Weirton side-tracked Monessen, 13-6.

Howard Currie, the ex-Shenango township high grid giant, is enrolled at Geneva college. Currie, a 215-pound lineman, should do well in the valley school.

Diamond shorts—Since the home club enjoys an edge of close to 10

Terry Moore, Bud Hafez, Joe Marty, Myril Hoag and Jimmy Fox, who are not listed as hurlers, marched to the mound. The reason? No one knows as yet. It strikes us as being a direct slap at a conscientious pitcher who is having an off moment and can't find the winning combination. We say, leave the comical end of the game to Al Schacht who has been doing a grand job all these years.

A dash of this and that—A diploma bombardment cost Army eight 1938 grid starters. . . . Tony Galento is a 1-3 underdog in his coming fracas with Lou Nova, Friday. . . . If nothing else, these all-star gridiron clashes are proving that a professional combination has a bit too much stuff for a collegiate eleven. . . . Idle thought: If Freddy Apostoli comes close to his Pittsburgh showing in his coming clash with Ceferino Garcia, he doesn't have a chance to win.

Dodgers Become League Factor

Club That Will Have Lot To Say On Pennant Winners

ONLY TWO GAMES IN MAJORS MONDAY

By LAWTON CARVER
International News Service Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—In the midst of a baseball renaissance the likes of which they haven't known for years, the Brooklyn Dodgers currently are the sensations of the National league and possibly the club that will have the most to say about where the pennant will land ultimately—Cincinnati or St. Louis. The Dodgers can't be figured as very strong contenders themselves, although they should finish no worse than fourth and might wind up second, but what they do on their current road swing is going to be all important to the rest. It so happens they are on a winning streak which has reached six in a row as they carry the fight into the west.

It will be recalled that they halted the Cardinals a couple of weeks ago when the latter were about to overtake the Reds and they are hustling now as they never have before.

"That's the answer to our recent success," said General Manager Larry MacPhail today. "We're hustling. I wouldn't care to predict where we will finish, but we quite obviously are going to make a fight of it." As a result of an off-day yesterday in the majors, only two games were played, the oft-forgotten Cardinal defeat at the hands of the Pirates, dropping the Cards 3 1/2 games behind the Reds, and a 11 to 9 victory scored by the Boston Red Sox over the Philadelphia Athletics. This cut the New York Yankees' lead to a mere 17 games.

INDIAN PRINCES
OFFERING AID TO

Presented by the Marquess of Linlithgow, viceroy, the message expressed deep satisfaction for the "widespread attachment of India" to Britain's cause.

No British Peace With Hitler Regime

By CHARLES A. SMITH
International News Service Staff
Correspondent

LONDON, Sept. 12.—The British government last night flatly declined to sign any sort of peace with Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler but announced its willingness at any time to negotiate a "just and honorable settlement" with a German regime whose word can be trusted.

In a fiery statement repudiating the charge of Field Marshall Hermann Goering that Britain seeks to impose "another Versailles" upon Germany, the ministry of information said:

"It is considered in official circles that Goering's speech has revealed the bankruptcy of German policy."

Hitler has made many promises to foreign countries and none of them has been kept. It is therefore not surprising that no confidence is felt in any assurance he may give and Britain therefore is justified in requiring that peace should be concluded with a German government whose word may be trusted.

"The German government has misled the German people, who were promised peace with honor."

"They have not got peace because the German government has deliberately pursued a policy of violence which has made war inevitable. They have not got honor, because the world recognized the crudity and violence of the German government's charges against Poland."

"This sickening technique, as Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain called it, has become too familiar. There is no country in Europe which does not regard the present German government as pursuing a policy which is a menace to security and independence."

"Britain is fighting for a return to decency in international relations. Until this is secured no country is safe."

"Germany may say that she has no aims in the west, but the tale of limited German territorial ambitions has been told too often to inspire the slightest confidence."

"Britain does not desire another Versailles, as Herr Goering falsely alleged, nor the collapse of Germany, but a just and enduring peace with any honorable German government."

"As regards the economic situation, Goering's remarks can have brought little comfort to his hearers, who already even before the outbreak of war had been reduced to such meager rations."

"What is to be said of a government which frivolously embarks upon unnecessary war in economic conditions of a gravity which even Goering's optimism does not venture to conceal from an audience which is only too well aware of the facts."
